Jury Returns 6 Indictments

A 12-man Milam District grand jury Tuesday returned six indictments, all robbery or burglary charges.

The all-male panel indicted Jimmie Westbrook and Meredith Blaylock, both of Cameron, on charges of robbery and Lonnie Seaton Jr., Frank Stephens, George Dewey Snow and James Ray Holland on charges of burglary.

The group deliberated about five hours Tuesday, officials said.

Westbrook and Blaylock were indicted on charges of robbing Ed Campus, Branchville, of $40 Sunday. Sheriff Carl Black said that the pair was arrested on charges of forcing Campus from his car and taking $40 from Campus.

Seaton was indicted on charges of entering Cary Lumber Co. November 16, 1958.

Both Snow and Stephens drew indictments charging burlary of the Milano School October 8, 1958 and taking about $150 from the school offices and safe. Black said $137 of the money was reclaimed.

Stephens is now serving a sentence in the state penitentiary for a previous conviction.

Holland was indicted on one count of burglarizing the Airport Cafe of money and cigarettes May 13.

Judge O. D. Graham called the grand jury in a regular May term of court.

Jurors were: R. D. Wise, Gus Backhaus, Jr., C. B. Jenness, Martin Rodenbeck, L. E. Rose, Erskin McDermott, W. L. Hall, Joe Glaser, Walter Lester, Marvin Petty, (foreman), Richard Ellison and Roy Yates.

Ol' With FML 100

When our problems are insufferable, we wonder how we can abide our lot. There is no solution and there is no place to hide!

Sound familiar? It should because these thoughts cross everyone's mind at least once in a while. Each finds his plight the most incomprehensible of the age, something different from his fellow's.

Is it? Do we find our problems so important that they rule out the things that must be done?

Consider this suggestion: It takes no prescription, no lifetime of study, no trip to the sage halls of high-flown counsel. Anything but magic, anything but panacea, anything but elixir. All it takes is a look at the sky.

100-100-100

Name your problem, the most momentous in your life. Then look up at the sky one clear night, any of your choosing. And start counting visible stars. Just count, that's all. And as you count, notice how more stars become visible to the eye, less bright but visible. And keep on counting.

An hour or two of counting stars, not wishing on them, will enlighten. You will realize the magnitude of your environment, the infinite, endless scope of your universe.

Perhaps then you begin to see that your problem, be what it may, is as infinitely small as your universe is infinitely large. As you look at the blinking billions of stars, their fragments and meteors, perhaps you will see that millions before you have shared that problem, only to look up to the sky and understand.

100-100-100

But my problem is down here! you exclaim.

So it is. But all that myriad above you is partially yours, just as the earth is part of it. Men are so certain of their part in the universe that they are firing rockets at the moon and planning to send other men aloft.

Your problem, my problem is important at the moment. But shall we drag out that moment as if it were an integral part of that eternity above.

It is presumptious of us to attempt it. It is more fitting, and more courageous, to shelve our problem and work on our immediate environment. We can do something about that. And accomplishment will bring us a bit closer to the self-importance we hold so dear and closer to the right of self-remorse we too often enjoy.

COMING DOWN — A workman waves with bravado from his lofty perch atop the old Cameron "standpipe" water tower being dismantled by workmen this week. Workmen are breaking out the rivets holding the steel tower together and lowering the sections by rope for later use. On the southside of the Courthouse square, the water tower has served Cameron since its construction about 1895. Contractors will haul away the steel and crush the cement base to ground level. Work began last week on the "destruction project."

WHISKERY ARCHIVES — These 78 gentlemen posed for this picture 13 years ago during the Cameron Centennial celebration. Can you identify any or all of them? You will find a number of them are trying again to win the whisker prize during the Western Week beard growing contest now underway. Title on the picture shows names of the officers of the 1946 group. Chamber officials were considering a group picture of 1959 beard growers sometime during the Western Week celebration and Cameron Horse Show weekend July 13 - 18.

Jail, Beards Head West Week Action

Guard Unit Notes Two Enlistments During Campaign

Milam County's National Guard unit, Company C, 3rd Medium Tank Battalion reported today that its short recruiting campaign last week added two new members to the rolls of the organization.

One re-enlistment also was made during the period.

The re-enlistment was that of Staff Sergeant Thomas R. Sheguit who re-upped for his fourth 3-year term. Sheguit is assigned to the tank section as a tank commander. He resides with his wife and son in Cameron and is employed at Alcoa in Rockdale.

The two new members are listed as Pfc. Albert F. Mondrik and Eleno S. Alvarado.

Both are former members of Company C of several years ago. Mondrik recently completed a 3-year tour of duty in the Navy. Alvarado served in Guard units in Ballinger and Fort Worth as well as Company C here. He is employed at the Texas Company service station on Fourth Street here in Cameron.

Flames Destroy Small Frame House

A 2:30 a.m. fire Saturday burned to the ground a frame house at 806 W. Tyson St.

City fire department officials said Alta Hoyle, of that address, escaped injury.

Cause of the blaze was a kerosene lamp which was left burning by Hoyle. Wind whipped the lamp's flame, setting the wallpaper afire, Officials said.

Fire Marshal John Eanes termed the structure the total loss only partially covered by insurance. Property owner is H. L. Green Sr.

Camp Councelor

Mrs. Edwin Adams served as a Junior Camp counselor at the Presbyterian Church Camp in Cisco, last week. The camping program consisted of sports, acquiring camping skills, recreation, nature study and outdoor worship.

Council Approves 4th-Fannin Light

The City Council Tuesday night voted to erect a stop-caution-go sign at the intersection of Fourth and Fannin and called for final efforts to clear the way for Jackson Street paving.

Councilmen voted unanimously to install a three-way light replacing the red blinker at the US 77 intersection which, officials said, has become a dangerous crossing since completion of the four-lane road.

City Sec. John Andres told councilmen that six property owners remain who have not paid for their share of paving or made payout arrangements. About $4,600 in notes and cash has been collected, he said.

Paving Paid Aras?

Councilmen discussed the possibility of paving all but those streetway fronts unpaid for by property owners. The council three weeks ago set a policy of cash-in-advance prior to paving.

Meanwhile work continued on Tenth Street as a new grade was set and contractors planned to start asphalt paving within a few days.

In other action the council dismissed back taxes charged against the Jerusalem Baptist Church, N. Eighth St., on property owned by H. K. Harnsberry, former O. J. Thomas School principal and pastor of the church.

He appeared in behalf of the congregation Tuesday night to request the dismissal of city taxes. He said the property was in his name only, but that the church had a building used solely for religious purposes.

He said the property was put in his name so that financing could be arranged to build the structure several years ago.

To Clear Ditch

Council authorization was granted to clear the drainage ditch in East Cameron which has been termed by health authorities a detriment to good health practices in the city.

And the State Water Board notified the council by letter that approval has been granted to raise the level of the city's Little River dam.

Officials have indicated little interest in the project since completion of other main projects in the water plant program. Engineers estimated raising the dam about three feet would cost more than $40,000.

Fire Marshal John Eanes told councilmen that fire losses in Cameron for the first six months were about $8,500 and predicted the good fire record would ultimately bring a reduction in fire insurance rates.

Merchants Are In Spotlight of Cen-tex League Baseball

The Merchants of Cameron were in the spotlight of Cen-tex league baseball Sunday as they downed Salado 3-1 for their 2nd win of the season.

Pendleton kept their record perfect without a loss by thumping Eddy over 12-2. Roy Northern and Wayne Redden led Pendleton in the landslide while Wilcox led the losers at the plate.

Hurricane fence put together forces in the leagues remaining game to chop up Westphalia 16-0.

Ken Wade was the winning pitcher. He allowed 9 hits. Westphalia called on 3 mound workers who seemed helpless against the bombarding of Hurricane Fence.

Marcine Cottle and Wally Starnes led the winners at the bat. Gene Hoelscher and Gerald Beach led the losers.

The standing in the Cen-Tex league are as follows:

| | W | L |
|---|---|---|
| Pendleton | 7 | 0 |
| Hurricane Fence | 6 | 1 |
| Westphalia | 4 | 4 |
| Killeen | 4 | 3 |
| Cameron | 2 | 5 |
| Salado | 1 | 6 |

Cleburne Visitors

Mrs. Moody Cone Jackson and son Darrell of Cleburne were weekend guests in the home of Mrs. B. D. Clark.

Other visitors in the Clark home have been John, Joe and Debbie Chandler of Amarillo.

Chamber Boosts Western Garb Wear July 13-18

By Frank Luecke

"If'n you h'ain't got a beard or some cowboy outfit on, you gotta go to jail."

With this sage, though tongue-in-cheek advice, the Cameron Chamber and most of Milam County prepared for this city's first Western Week extravaganza.

Matching sentiment with psychology, Chamber trade development committeemen have demanded that Cameron "Go Western — or Go East" during the next 10 days.

It is all a prelude to Cameron's Western Week July 13-18 and the Saddle Club Horse Show July 17-18. A tabloid section of this edition tells all about plans for the first Cameron summer promotion of the heralded Cameron Horse Show.

Everyone Invited

Hilliard S. Thomas, chairman of the Chamber trade committee, said everyone is invited to join in the fun and hoopla that will make the Western Week a memorial occasion in Cameron promotion history.

There is no kidding about going to jail. Violators of the "Western code" will find themselves calaboosed in a barred one-room portable jail constructed by Cameron Jaycees. It will be complete with wailing siren and fines and confinement or both for "code" violators.

The code means wearing Western garb or beards during the 10-day celebration.

"Persons not wearing at least two articles of Western apparel during the week will be in the minority," Jaycee President John Schigut opined, "but those few who don't will go to jail, even for just a few minutes."

"The Jaycee sheriff in charge of arresting violators will have little mercy on those caught without proper dress because it is so easy to qualify," he said.

Special Ties

The Cameron Chamber will have on sale, starting tomorrow,, Western ties commemorating the celebration. Sale proceeds will go toward purchase of Christmas tree lights in downtown Cameron. The string ties will bear lettering boosting Western Week.

Meanwhile Cameron merchants are joining in the fun with mystery window prizes and wooden nickel exchange to boost interest in the show and Western Week.

And literally hundreds of beards are sprouting into their fourth week of growth as scraggly faced gents eye the prizes for best beards in a number of categories.

As Chamber Manager Richard Moseley puts it — "Everyone has an opportunity to participate. Men, women, boys and girls—tall, short, fat or slim — can have a party by talking Western, acting Western and dressing ... Western."

And podners, that's just what Cameron's gonna do.

Passes With Time . . . . .

Dismantling of the old water "standpipe" on the south side of the courthouse square marks the end of an era in the city's old water system.

City officials believe the 200-foot structure was installed in the 1890's when Cameron's first water system was built by the Lawrence family.

Since that time, Cameron has constructed the huge water tower in West Cameron, built a whole new system and is gradually extending waterlines through the city. The water system was purchased by the city about nine years ago.

Workmen are now pulling down the tower piece by piece for salvage. When work is completed, a familiar and outmoded land mark will be missing.

Last winter a main pipe feeding into the old tower burst and sprayed water over the area. The water stored in the tower, incidentally, served Cameron in fire insurance requirements until the present reservoir and waterplant system was completed. It is needed no more.

The City of Cameron is not spending a cent on the dismantling job. Officials arranged a trade whereby the wrecking company takes the salvage in exchange for doing the work. After completion, the site will be leveled with the street.

Cameron certainly got its money's worth form a tower that stood its purpose more than 60 years. In keeping with the modernization trend throughout Milam County's seat, it is coming down.

The Little River Philosopher

Finds Ag Department Confirms His Idea On Labor-Saving Devices

Dear editar:

I have long contended that the trouble with labor-saving devices is they don't save labor, they increase it, and I am now happy to have this opinion confirmed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

According to an article I ran across in a newspaper yesterday afternoon I was reading to get my mind off the noise of droning tractors running on my neighbors farms — personally I don't really mind listening to the tractors, it's the effect they have on my wife that bothers me, she hears the neighbors' tractors running and sees mine standing at the turnrow where I left it week before last and the consequent noise she makes is a nuisance — at any rate, according to this article, in spite of all the labor-saving devices which have been invented and sold to farmers, the average length of the farm workday has not shortened much. It's still better than ten and a half hours a day, the Department of Agriculture reported.

This bears out what I've been saying all along. When a man switches from a two-row tractor to a four-row tractor, you'd think he'd do the same amount of plowing in half the time, but what he does is do twice as much plowing in the same old time, ten or eleven hours a day. He finishes the day just as tired as he did when he had two-row equipment, and if you call this saving labor, you've got a different definition of the word than I have. The reason he does this is, he has to plow twice as much to pay for the new equivment. Then on top of this, since he's working twice as much land as before, he produces twice as much, which brings on twice as much surplus, which lowers the price, which causes him to come out about where he was when he had two-row equipment. And the only answer most of us can find to this is to aim at six-row equipment and work three times as much land.

It's the same thing in other lines. An electric typewriter may enable a secretary to type twice as fast, so what happens? She gets twice as many letters to handle. A bookkeeper with an automatic posting machine just takes on four times as many accounts as he had when he was doing it with pen and ink.

Most labor-saving devices, as far as I can tell, are actually labor-creating devices. I guess there's some satisfaction in finishing a week of eleven-hour days and looking back and saying, well, I've plowed as much this week as I used to plow in a month, but you've got to look mighty hard to find it.

Personally, I've never had to look to a machine to save labor for me. Those things will trap you. The way to save labor is to sit down and cool off. You wait for a machine to do it for you and you'll never get it done.

Yours faithfully,

J. A. '

Capitol Report:

House And Senate Chambers Cool

By Vera Sanford

AUSTIN—About the only cheerful remark heard around Texas Legislative halls of late is, "Think how bad it would be if it weren't air conditioned"

House and Senate chambers are cooled this year for the first time, though most of the rest of the Capitol is not as yet.)

Many remember summer sessions in pre-air conditioned days. Scorcher extraordinary was the one in 1949 which ran to July 6, longest regular session in Texas history.

Lawmakers and reporters complained that the huge granite blocks in the Capitol walls collected heat like a dutch oven. Coat and tie rules in the legislative chambers added to the misery.

Some observers said that the 1949 Legislature (which also had a tax problem) didn't really quit. It just sort of melted down. A special session was called the next winter to clear up money problems.

For all its comforts, air conditioning hasn't taken the sweat out of passing a tax bill.

Both House and Senate have passed tax bills, and a new conference committee was put to work to try to piece them together. But the floor action preceding passage gave no indication that any of the conflicting groups is ready to give an inch.

House membership is split three ways into (1) those who don't want the majority of new taxes to fall on business, (2) those who don't want a majority to be sales taxes and (3) those who apparently don't want any new taxes.

Each of the first two groups has been able to defeat the other's proposals with the help of the "no-taxers." Hence, despite public impatience and their own weariness, lawmakers have been ensnared in a one-step-forward and two backward pattern.

Something Old, Something New

Given to the conference committee on taxes were a new bobtailed bill from the House and an old, nearly full-size bill from the Senate.

House bill would raise about $106,000,000 over two years — about $70,000,000 less than is needed. Snate bill, designd to raise about $160,000,00 is the same one passed by the Senate in the first special session. It contains more sales taxes than business taxes which the House refused to accept on the last round.

Cut from the House bill before passage were the $5 deductible sales tax (a 2 per cent levy on costs over $50) and the natural gas severance beneficary tax Both fell by the wayside in one of the "if you kill my tax, I'll kill yours" sessions.

Remaining in the bill were levies on which the House has been able to agree all along — on cigarettes, liquor, auto sales and corporation franchises.

"New wrinkles" added were (1) a licensing fee for private clubs that sell liquor and a 10 per cent tax on mixing drinks and (2) a 1.5 per cent sales tax on boats, motors and airplanes.

Bill also contains a provision to cut the sulphur tax from $1.40 to $1.03 a ton.

House confrees, none of whom served on the committe last session who served before, Sens. Rudolph Weinert, Dorsey Hardeman, Bruce Reagan and Jimmy Phillips, plus one new member, Sen. Wardlow Lan.

Senae Okays Beach Bill

After considerable haggling and several close votes, the Senate passed a bill to guarantee public access to public beaches.

Mustang and Padre Islands are exempted from the provisions of the bill. Sen. Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi, who sponsord the amendment, said that the islands were being developed with a systematic plan for public parks, beches and reacreation areas.

Opponents to exemption said it would allow at least one-third of the beaches on the islands to be under private control.

As passed by the Ssate, the bill does not try to define boundary between state and private land, but simply affirms the public's right to come and go from state beaches by woy of roads.

County Agent Reports:

Shade And Cool Water Are Best Device For Herds

By J. D. Moore
County Agent

The critical temperature for dairy cows has been found to be 80 degrees. At temperatures much above this, milk production, body weight and feed consumption decline. This emphasizes the fact that comfort may be as important in hot weather as proper feeding and milking practices.

"Shade is the best cooling device that dairymen can economically provide for their herds, along with plenty of cool water, of course," says Arch Meekma, extension dairy specialist.

A few feed sacks stretched over a pole frame large enough to shade the water troughs will keep water as much as 20 degrees cooler than un-shaded water. It is easy to see that shade and cool water together will go a long way toward putting more milk in your cooler, and more money in your pocket.

Range Management

How many POUNDS of beef or lamb will my ranges produce this year? This is a question more and more ranchers are beginning to ask instead of how many HEAD.

Because livestock is sold by the pound instead of by the head, it is easy to see how this relatively new question is a more accurate measure of success or failure.

From the poundage viewpoint, other questions arise. Is it possible to get the same return from fewer animals and if so, how? The answer lies in better management of your livestock and grass.

Research has shown that ranges which are properly stocked will make more profit is most cases than will ranges that are not. The calf or lamb crop percentages are higher on properly stocked ranges, which cuts down on feeding non-producers.

Good examples of range management are evident throughout the county. Mr. F. H. Scarborough's coastal bermuda grass is worthy of attention. The dark green grass just east of the Little River bridge as seen from the north end of the bridge is a planting of coastal bermuda showing superior grazing values as compared to the common bermuda adjoining this plot on the south side. The coastal bermuda makes a more noticable forage yield on the more fertile soils.

This particular demonstration is yielding more than double the yield of common bermuda grass.

Many grasses as well as field crops show signs of "firing" or "burning" at the bottom of the plants at this time of the year. Nitrogen fertilizer will help keep grasses green longer. We observed Mr. Scarborough's cattle leaving the shade and going directly to the green coastal bermuda because of the more succulent condition of the grass. Cattle should be able to "fill up" within an hour if forage is adequate.

This is an indication of the range improvement and can be verified by those stockmen familiar with coastal bermuda gross.

'Nuclear Age' Is Answer To An Old Agriculture Problem

COLLEGE STATION—The use of radioisotopes by Texas Agricultural Experiment Station workers is providing a "nuclear age" answer to an old problem in agriculture — what happens to a chemical after it is applied and enters a plant.

"By the use of radioisotopes incorporated into the structure of the chemicals and instruments such as the Geiger counter we can locate a chemical or fragments of it after it has been applied to the plant," says Dr. C. S. Miller of the Department of Plant Physiology and Pathology.

At present Dr. Miller, Dr. Wayne Hall and other staff members of the department are concerned with residue studies on plants, primarily cotton, to determine how much of the residue of chemicals remains in the seed, which ultimately go into food or feed products.

Also by the use of radioactive material it is possible to determine what happens to the chemicals within the plant, whether they are broken down and lost from the plant, stored in certain parts of the plant, or used in the life process of the plant.

A nuclear reactor is to be constructed at Texas A. and M. College. Among its products will be isotopes for an expansion of an "inner look" into plants.

Commercial laboratories will determine the poisonous effects of chemicals in feeding experiments to small animals. Scientists in plant physiology and pathology can apply the chemicals to plants and determine the amount of residue in the plant parts which can be used for food or feed. Then the Pure Food and Drug Administration will determine if each chemical is safe to apply to plants.

The future of use of radioactive material in plant studies appears unlimited, Dr. Miller concluded. We will be able to study many of the 102 elements to determine how each is used within a plant, including uptake of fertilizers by plants, and trace elements and their bearings on plant life.

Safety In Farm Living

The objective of National Farm Safety Week is to establish safety in farm living. Farm safety activities aim at developing the attitudes, customs and environment for safe living for every member of the family every day in the year. In the vital contest of education vs. accidents, the score should be Safety Education 100 per cent—Accidents zero.

Use Care In Firing Briquettes

COLLEGE STATION—Be careful when firing charcoal briquettes, says the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council. This is a major problem when cooking over an outdoor grill. Don't let an accident mar your family's enjoyment of an outdoor barbeque.

The Council cites two rules to observe when starting a charcoal fire: never use gasoline, either raw or in a mixture, to kindle any fire, and never add any kind of liquid fuel after the fire has started.

There are several methods you can use to start a fire safely. Paper or excelsior under the briquettes take time and fanning but produces results. Some manufacturers treat the briquettes with a substance that burns readily when ignited. These cost a little more but are easier to fire.

Kerosene or a commercial charcoal lighter fluid also may be used. Put some of the briquettes in a five quart oil can and pour the kerosene or starter fluid over the briquettes until they are saturated. Pour off the excess fluid and you can use it again.

Put the saturated briquettes in the pit or brazier and light. Use a long candle or a paper "wick", made by twisting a sheet of newspaper into a tight "stick" shape. This will protect your hands.

Whether your grill or pit is located in the backyard, a lakeshore, park or recreation area, make sure it is located in an open space well way from buildings and trees the Council cautions. Remember that the first B in barbeque stands for "Be Careful."

Cattle Set New Record

By J. D. Moore
County Agent

On January 1, 1959, there were 96,851,000 head of cattle in the United States. This is a new record and 3½ million more than on January 1, 1958. Most of this increase in the cattle inventory was in young beef stock. For example, beef heifers rose 750,000 head, steer numbers also rose 750,000 head and calf numbers were 1,300,000 higher.

The beef cow herd also increased 1.3 million. However, the number of milk cows were off 600,000 head, and the increase in total cows was only 700,000.

Cattle slaughter will hold up well in 1959 and it can increase a little above that of 1958, but it will not be a great increase. Many of the heifer and heifer calves will be retained as breeding stock. However, many young cattle will go to slaughter this year, or next, after a period of feeding. On January 1, 1959 there were 11 per cent more cattle on feed than a year ago.

We don't expect a big expansion in beef production for the market in 1959 or 1960 because cow numbers are not large. They are still 2 million below 1955 and this is favorable from a price standpoint, because the calf crop this year will not be large enough to bring about a great increase in slaughter in 1959. However, chances are that prices of cattle will be lower in 1960 and 1961 as cow numbers increase.

The collapse in cattle prices usually comes later on in the cattle cycle when breeding herds are built up and calf crops increase. It could come in the early 1960's. The outlook for fairly stable slaughter and prices in 1959 is based upon favorable range and pasture conditions. Prices during the rest of 1959 should remain good. However, a widespread drouth could bring about larger marketings and lower prices. Cattle producers should watch cow numbers closely in 1959.

Slaughter of cows under federal inspection in the first half of 1958 was 16 per cent below a year, before but in the second half it was 32 per cent smaller, cow slaughter for the period January-March, 1959 was 24 per cent below last year and the smallest for the period since 1952. If this rate of withholding continues, the expansion would be greater and prices could break much sooner than expected.

The expansion of cattle numbers is moving into full swin. A build up of 4 to 5 million head is expected during 1959. A build up of this size would approach the rate of expansion which occurred in 1951 and 1952, during the last cattle cycle and remember prices broke in 1953. If this build up continues, it will end all hope of avoiding the over expansion that brought lower prices in the middle 1950's. It would result in severe price declines in the early 1960's.

The expected increase in numbers in 1959 would far exceed the rate of population growth in the United States. This increase represents a large build up in the beef supply for the future. The present boom brings with it the prospect of a price decline in the future when marketings catch up with production. Even if the rate of expansion should slow somewhat after 1959 there is a very good possibility that numbers would reach 110,000,000 head by 1964. This is the slowest rate of expansion that can be expected if no severe drouth occurs in the meantime. This would provide 90 pounds of beef for consumption per person and 41 pounds more than the record in 1956. Such a beef supply would bring a big reduction in prices of cattle.

If numbers move upward at a fast pace there might be available 94½ pounds of beef per person by 1964. An output of this size would demoralize the price of cattle. Prospects for cattle and beef supplies as well as price both in 1959 and the next few years would be altered sharply if a severe drouth should develop. Watch range conditions closely in 1959 not just in your local areas, but all over the United States. A severe drouth would cause more cattle to move to market and you may want to be there first with the most. You can't ever tell.

A few words about fed cattle - Cattle feeding continues to increase Cattle on feed in 13 states on April 1 were 8 per cent above the same date last year and 20 per cent above two years earlier. At any other stage of the cattle cycle, fed cattle marketings of 1959 volume would force fed cattle prices lower than they are at the present time. They are not doing so because the market supply of all cattle, other than fed cattle, is very small.

I believe that prices of fed cattle will continue to be sensitive to the level of total cattle marketings.

In summarizing feeder and stocker prices which are very important to Texas ranchers, it appears that they will stay good in 1959. Even if they should drop some later on in the year, they would still be good.

Junior Dairy 4-H Club Tours Dairy Monday

Milam County Junior Dairy 4-H Club held a tour Monday, June 22. The John Lawhon Dairy Farm, south of Cameron, was visited. Mrs. Lawhon told the group, "records are essential for an efficient diary operation."

4-H members were impressed by the cleanliness of the diary barn and surrounding area. Mrs. Lawhon pointed out the new bulk storage tank, and noted the ease in cooling and handling milk.

David McClaren demonstrated to the group how a dairy animal should be shown.

Members with 4-H projects visited were: David McClaren, Johnnie Richter, Jeannette Richter, Carolyn Jistel, Martin Jistel, Ronald Kostroun and Penny Graves.

Adult leaders accompanying the group were Mrs. Johnnie Richter, Hubest Jistel, Ms. and Mrs. Richard Jistel, Mrs. Jerry Kostroun, Mrs. Rufus A. Graves and Arthur Jistel.

County agent J. D. Moore and Ass't County agent Robert Hoermann helped 4-H members in showing their 4-H projects.

Brucellosis Areas

Only three Texas counties are among the 1,576 in the nation now listed as modified certified brucellosis areas. The three, said Dr. C. M. Patterson, extension veterinarian, are Jeff Davis, Brewster and Presidio.

Crop Conditions Are Holding Up

Crop conditions pretty well "held their own" during the past week. Good rains of one inch or better helped some areas, whereas feed crops lost a little in areas that received only showers of rain.

Corn and maize crops continue to look good. Early maize is turning red and should be ready to harvest by the week of July 20. Most of the corn should make around 40 bushels per acre which is pretty good corn for average farmers. Where fertilizer and water were applied, some fields of corn will yield from 70 to 100 bushels per acre.

Experiences teaches us not to be too optomistic about a cotton crop but we will get "out on a limb" and predict the best cotton prospects in several years.

Basis for making such a statement are due to three things: First, we have had no overflows on the rivers in the county and the bottom land is capable of producing good crops. Second, we have not had the insect infestation that prevailed the past few years and Third, the insecticides applied early gave excellent results as they they are expected to do.

Approximately 600 acres of watermelons in the Rockdale-Milano areas started moving this week.

Cottonseed Meal

Research conducted by the USDA and state experiment stations has increased the market for cottonseed meal by an estimated 300,000 tons annually. The expansion was made possible through improved processing techniques which lower the free gossypol content in the meal.

Basic Cause of Accidents

Human failures, not motor vehicles, farm implements and animals, is the basic cause of accidents.

Fertilizer Is Factor In Promoting Yield

RENNER—Data compiled during 10 years of grain sorghum investigations at Texas Research Foundation indicate that commercial fertilizer is the most significant factor in promoting and maintaining yield, Dr. C. L. Lundell, Director of the Foundation, announced Saturday.

"Initiated in 1947, the investigations include 19 different farming systems, of which 11 feature grain sorghums either continuously or in rotation with other crops and either fertilized or unfertilized," Dr. Lundell said.

"Results of the first 10 years of study—no yield was salvaged during the 1954 crop failure—reveal the prime importance of commercial fertilizer in stimulating production."

In an unfertilized, 3-year rotation of grain sorghum with wheat and cotton, where all crop residues were returned to the lond, the yeild of grain sorghum declined.

"The decline, however, was not so great as that of continuous grain sorghum without fertilization," Dr. Lundell said.

"But in the other farming systems where fertilizer was applied, the yield of grain sorghum responded steadily, regardless of whether the non-row crop in the rotation was wheat, Hubam clover or sod."

Dr. Lundell said that grain sorghum hybrids, as well as the open pollinated varieites, are included in the stdies. "Hybrids were incorporated into the investigations in 1956, as soon as they were available," he said.

If it's insureable, George Childress has the policy for it at low cost. Monthly premium payments available. —Adv.

Top - Water Plugging Gives Most Thrills In Fishing

By Vern Sanford

At last the season is here when we can use top-water plugs.

Some men fish with plugs throughout the year. But I prefer them in the spring, after the water has warmed sufficiently that the bass begin to spawn.

To me, top-water plugging is the ultimate in fishing thrills. There is nothing to equal it. When a bass rises to bang a top-water plug into the air, then somersaults to shake it loose, fishing is at its best.

I'll admit that I get a thrill when I feel any fish tugging at a jig or plastic worm as it moves slowly across the bottom. I even miss a heart beat or two when one bumps into a deep running plug. But when a big bass breaks the water to grab a top-water chuggar, I never want to quit.

There are many kinds of top-water plugs. Which is the best? That's pretty much up to you and the fish. If you know how to work a plug right, you will more than likely hook a bass. If you just splash the plug around in the water, however, a fish is likely to thumb his nose at you and move on.

Basically a top-water plug is one that rides on top. There are several types. One is the darter type. It is shaped like the end of a cigar with a V-shaped foreend. As you manipulate the lure in the water it darts from right to left.

Perhaps the most often mentioned top-water lure is the chuggar head. My preference is the Heddon Spook. It is best manipulated by short jerks — long jerks too — which splash the water with a swooshing sound. Some bass just can't stand that.

Then there is the spinner type of top-water plug. There are at least three different varieites. Some have spinners on the front ends. Some have spinners on the back ends. Others have them on both ends.

They operate in somewhat the same manner as the chuggar and are very effective, especially around old logs.

You may use these lures differently. The darter, for instance, I like to use in fairly open water. There is no particular reason that I can give, except that it seems to me to be more appropriate.

On the other hand, I like to chunk a chuggar into brushy water. It works extremely well where treetops are sticking out of the water. I like to toss it well back between the treetops, then work it toward me with a frequent swoosh.

When I fish around old logs, I like to lay a spinner-type topwater lure alongside the log. I let it rest there until I count to twenty. Then I jiggle it just slightly.

If the spinners are working well it will stir up plenty of water. I try not to work it too fast. If there is a bass in the shade of that log, he may be watching. He can't stand it very long.

Some of the largest bass ever caught have been landed by fishermen who didn't rush them. They just put that plug in a good spot and let it rest awhile. Then they'd move it ever so lightly. I've seen some fishermen leave their lures for five minutes in pretty much the same spot. It pays.

There are numerous advantages to top-water fishing. In the first place, it is less expensive. You seldom lose a top-water lure unless you happen to toss it into a treetop out of reach.

Of course you can lose them to a big bass, unless you're careful. Which prompts the suggestion that at the beginning of every fishing trip, you'd do well to peel off a few feet at the end of your line so that any frayed or weak place will be taken out. Check your swivel, if you use one. That sometimes makes a difference between boating a bass or losing your plug and the bass.

A snapped line, with a fish on Sometimes you can retrieve your lure and your fish. But it seldom happens that way.

When a bass finds he's hooked with a plug, he tries to throw it some will go under the brush, hoping to hang a hook and pull it loose. Others will start a series of acrobatics. They'll jump into the air until they're exhausted. You may retrieve your fish then — if you work fast.

Others will head out for the banks and attempt to jump out of the water into the brush. In this way, frequently, they can free themselves. Occasionally they'll jump too high and hang in the brush. Then you can get your plug back, and the bass too.

Top-water fishing at night is a lot of fun. I like to settle down in a good spot, in the cool of the evening, and fish on into the night.

In my mind, the old-fashioned jitterbug is one of the best top-water lures. It casts well. You can walk it across the surface. It makes just exactly the right noise to attract bass. And night-time bass really fight. But you have to be careful where they go once you hook one.

Some fishermen refuse to use a landing net. I much prefer to use a net. In fact, if you want to be sure to boat your bass with the least effort, a good, light net is necessary.

However, if you're agile enough you can hold the rod back taut, then reach your fingers under the fish's gills and lift the fish out. This makes a good picture, and some men do it well. As for me, I prefer the surer method.

Of course, when you use a net, you must always figure that your hooks will snag. Best way to prevent this is to remove the belly hook of the top-water plug. I do that on many plugs.

They cast just as well without the belly hook, they hook as many fish, and they don't snag nearly so much.

TEXAS CHAMPIONS OF FREEDOM

GENERAL JOHN BELL HOOD

Defender of States Rights and Self-Determination

In victory and defeat John Bell Hood, the Texas Brigade's "fighting general" of the Civil War, was a dedicated defender of man's right to choose his way of life. Like Robert E. Lee, Hood was a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. And, like Lee, he resigned his commission in the U. S. Army to serve his state and the South through the bitter years from 1861 to the surrender at Appomattox Court House, April 9, 1865.

From the time he took command of the 4th Texas Infantry, that — with other Texas and Confederate regiments — came to be known as Hood's Texas Brigade, because of his daring leadership. Victories and promotions came quickly. As Major General Hood he was considered the hero of Chickamauga, where he lost his right leg. As Lieutenant General Hood, commanding the Army of Tennessee, he met crushing defeat at Nashville on December 16, 1864, and was relieved of his command.

But Texas doesn't forget her champions of freedom. A monument in his memory stands within the state capitol grounds at Austin, and Camp Hood established during World War II — now Fort Hood — was named in honor of the "fighting general," loyal defender of his state's rights to self-determination.

Today Texans still demand and get their right to choose the way they want to live. In this vigorous and freedom-minded homeland . . "Beer Belongs" and this is why the United States Brewers Foundation works constantly, in conjunction with brewers, wholesalers and retailers, to assure the sale of beer and ale under pleasant, orderly conditions. Believing that strict law enforcement serves the best interest of Texans, the Foundation stresses close co-operation with the Armed Forces, law enforcement and governing officials in its continuing Self-Regulation program.

Say It With Flowers By Glass

After 27 years in the wholesale and retail business, there is little doubt that "when you say it with flowers in Cameron and Rosebud, Glass the Florist says it best." In fact two generations of Glass, the Florists, make floral service and selection a pleasure and delight regardless of the occasion.

Co-owners Mr. and Mrs. Lester Glass and son, Donald Glass, present an array of flowers for that special occasion that makes a remembrance from Glass, the Florist something really special.

Donald Glass points out that potted plants, sprays, corsages, bouquets, cut flowers and any other floral requirement are available in a spectrum of selections.

Greenhouse Fresh

He emphasizes that flowers by Glass are greenhouse fresh to their customers. Glass, the Florist grows most of their flowers in their own local greenhouses.

Freshly picked, the flowers are beautifully arranged by the skilled floral decorators at Glass the Florist. And they are delivered in fast efficient manner by one of five trucks working in Cameron and a truck in Rosebud, he points out.

"We consider the floral occasion in recommending types of flowers and there arrangements to our customers. We strive for the personal touch that flowers convey when they are given as a gift or special remembrance."

Glass's floral arrangments for funerals are done with dignity and grace befitting the need, Glass says. And equal care is devoted to flower and scenic arrangements for weddings and parties.

View On Sports

By Robert Mann
Herald Sports Editor

On the local baseball scene this past week there were two noticable upsets.

The first concerned the Merchants who took their second win of the year upsetting Salado 3-1.

The second was the beating the Little League Braves took off the Bears. It was the Braves, who firmly lodged in first place, first defeat of the year under the management of Johnny Florida.

Strangely enough Florida played a large part of Cameron's victory over Salado Sunday. Florida walked and tallied the first Cameron run.

V O S

In the past few weeks Yoe High School has accepted the resignation of three of their four men of their coaching staff.

The first to go was C team Coach Billy Joe Michalka. Michalka handled the C team for two years and was an assistant A and B team coach. He was first under the direction of Leo Jackson.

Three weeks ago, Cameron basketball star and coach Bill Kruger accepted a position at San Marcos as basketball coach.

Kruger, 23, headed the Yoe roundballers for one full year where they were shown as a much improved team. Kruger headed the Yoe half of the season previous when Coach Jackson's absence left the chore to Jim Speer for the first half of the year.

Last week it was announced that Murphy Webster, former little All-American of Del Mar Junior College was leaving Cameron for a position in Irving.

Webster was assistant coach 3 years. He led the C team in 56 his first year here. A native of Dallas the 29 year old coached at Haskell a year before accepting the Cameron position.

Bears, White Sox Win In Little League

Little League action was headed by the Braves suffering their first loss of the season Friday night falling to the Bears 8-3. In the second game of the twinball the White Sox leaped over the Yankees 12-2 in a shortened 3 inning game.

Mac McKinney Hurled a 2 hitter in setting back the Braves, 3rd inning when Rays and Laffere came across the plate. Glaser scored in the 5th inning for the Braves final tally.

The Bears were led at the plate by McKinney, 3 for 3 and Mike Perrin 2 for 3.

The losing pitcher was Lawrence Laffere.

The White Sox tore into the Yankees in the 2nd contest in the first inning picking up 4 runs. The Yanks picked up 1.

They continued to rampage getting 7 in the 3rd after being held scoreless in the 2nd. The yankees also added one in the 3rd. The Sox take a 10 run advantage to end the game.

Rocky Robert led the winners at the plate going 3 for 3, and Mees was 2 for 3.

For the losers Wallace and Jeff Nelson collected hits.

The winning hurler was Humble and the loser Zalesky.

Merchants Defeat Salado In 3-1 Victory

The Cameron Merchants broke their string of bad luck losses Sunday upsetting Salado behind the hurling of Marvin Doskocil 3-1.

Doskocil swept to the victory, allowing only 3 hits. The lone Salado run came across on an error. Holding on throughout the game he fanned 13.

Cameron picked up their first tally in the 4th. After trailing 1-0, Johnny Florida walked and advanced home later on errors.

The score remained a 1-1 tie with both teams leaving men on base and committing a number of errors through the sixth inning. In the seventh, Cameron tallied twice to mark the deciding factor of the game.

Cats Win Over Owls 8-2 In League Action

In a rain threatened game the Cats won over the Colts 8-2 in a Babe Ruth League contest.

Horseshow, Trade Events Fun, Await Cameron Public

Many outstanding events will take place in Cameron during Western Week, July 13-18, the climax of which will be the Fifth Annual Cameron Saddle Club Horse Show. The Western Week observance has three main objectivities — to publicize one of the most outstanding horse shows in the country, to promote trade in Cameron, and to provide funds with which to purchase new Christmas street decoration.

Big Parade

The Horse Show proper will be kicked off with a big downtown parade at 5:30 p.m. Friday, July 17th. Hundreds of horseback riders from all over central Texas, a time buggies, bands, floats & other entries will be in the line-up.

Horse Show

The Gaited Horse Show will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, July 17th and the Quarter Horse Show at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, July 18th, both events taking place in Wilson-Ledbetter Park. Scores of trophies, ribbons and other prizes will be awarded to contestants in these events.

"Brothers of the Brush"

To gain the western atmosphere a beard growing contest is already underway, with competition getting keener by the day. Many of Cameron's best known citizens will be hard to recognize by the contest judging date, July 17th. Those participating are known as "brothers of the Brush."

Christmas Decoration Funds

Funds for the Christmas street decorations will come from the sale of "Brothers of the Brush" buttons to beard growing contestants and "Shave Permits" to those who would prefer to shave. Also on sale will be "Peddler's Permits", authorizing traveling salesmen to ply their trade in Cameron stores and western ties to be worn during Western Week. Other funds will be derived from fines extracted in fun from those who fail to participate in any phase of the week's frolic.

Western Wear

Everybody—men, women and children—will be expected to take part in promoting the western atmosphere by wearing at least two articles of western apparel during the week. Failure to do will subject the violator of the "Western code" to possible confinement in the Western Week jail and a fine.

Wooden Nickels

As a part of the trade promotion phase of Western Week 5,000 wooden nickels will be put into circulation. They will be given in change by the merchants and can be spent by the public, having the value of a real nickel throughout Western Week. These nickels will have a serial number printed on the back, many of which will be lucky numbers entitling the holder to valuable prizes to be offered by the merchants. The purpose being to get and spend as many of these nickels as possible in order to try to obtain the lucky ones.

Mystery Windows

Many merchants will also enter the mystery window contest, giving the buying public additional opportunity to win valuable prizes. These merchants will place an article in their window display that they do not ordinarily sell. Customers will try to discover what that article is by checking the window and checking the counters in the store. If the customers does determine what the mystery article is he received it or some other valuable prize.

Surprise Events Planned

There will be many additional surprises in store for everyone, which will be made known only as they occur. These will take place in the downtown section of the city, making it desirable for everyone to be downtown as much of the week as possible in order not to miss out on any fun.

Parade To Start Western Week

A downtown parade will touch off the two-day Cameron Horse Show July 17-18.

Saddle Club President Charles McDermott said the show will begin with gaited competition 7:30 p.m. Friday July 17 and continue with the quarter horse competition 8 a.m. Saturday, July 18 with the final open cutting events that evening.

The fifth annual event will be boosted by a week of Western Week activities July 13-18 that include beard growing contests, "wooden nickles", special trade events and a special jail for "Western Week violations."

The Cameron Chamber is boosting the week-long promotion to widen the scope of the Saddle Club's attendance, McDermott said.

The parade will include a number of saddle clubs from Central Texas, bands, floats from the Milam County area.

Both gaited and quarterhorse shows will be held at the Saddle Club arena in Wilson-Ledbetter Park, club officails noted. The gaited show has been held at Yoe Field in prior years.

Mrs. Joe Hickman is chairman of the quarter horse show and Buddy Shipp is chairman of the gaited show.

CHUCK WAGON — The ol' chuck wagon will lead the Cameron Saddle Club's annual pre-show parade about 5 p.m. Friday, July 17, that will climax Western Week in Cameron, the city's first promotion of the quarter horse feature attraction. This picture, snapped during the 1957 parade, will be re-enacted during the parade July 17 when bands, floats and saddle clubs touch off the weekend of Cameron Horse Show fun. All the competition will be at Wilson-Ledbetter Park, but the whole city is turning out with promotions and fun for the week-long event.

McDermott expects entries from all over the Southwest in the quarter horse and gaited contests. Outstanding entries from leading stables and breeders in past shows have brought Cameron's show state-wide interest, he added.

A wards will go to winners in 15 classes of gaited competition including shetland poney class, barrel races, reining and keyhole racing.

Scope of Events

Competition in the quarter horse show will match talents in roping, cutting, Western Pleasure classes, halter classes of stallions and fillies and open cutting.

A trophy and six ribbons will be given in the performance classes.

McDermott said that combined efforts of Saddle Club and Chamber membership would probably make the fifth Cameron Horse Show the best attended event in its history.

The schedule is as follows:

Performance classes at 8 a.m. are Junior Roping, Senior Roping, Junior Reining, Senior Reining, Junior Cutting, Senior Cutting, and Western Pleasure Class.

Halter classes at 1 p.m. 1959 38, 57, 56, and 55 and before stallions, 1959, 58, 57, 56, 55 and before fillies, Grand champion stallion, Reserve Champion stallion, Grand champion mare, Reserve champion mare, Junior Geldings, and Senior Geldings.

Western Events To Begin Friday

Friday will be the start of Western Week trade events in most of Cameron's stores. Two main features will be the wooden nickel promotion and the mystery window.

Merchants will give their customers wooden nickels in change beginning Friday. These nickels not only can be spent just like any other nickel, but may entitle the holder to valuable prizes. This is the way it works. Each wooden nickel in circulation, and there will be 5,000 of them, will have a serial number printed on the back. Some of the numbers will match numbers of prizes which will be on display in the participating merchants stores. The person that gets the lucky number gets the prize. It is anticipated that there will be fifty or more prizes available to the buying public.

The object, of course, is to get and spend just as many wooden nickels as possible in order to keep the numbers moving. Customers must go into the particpating stores to see the prizes and to find out what the lucky numbers are. Then the race is on to get hold of those lucky numbered nickels in order to claim the prize. Prizes will range in value from $5.00 to $10.00 each.

The mystery window contest also entitles the shopping public to additional valuable prizes. The merchants putting in a mystery window will display items that they do not normally sell. The objects of this trade promotion event is to check the wndow and check the store to try and find out what that item is. The person that identifies the mystery item first is the winner of a valuable prize to be given by the participating merchant.
